NEEF BRIEF

June 2023

SPOTLIGHTING ...

As summer vacation starts, don't let reading challenges stop your child. According to Christina Reyna, Driscoll Middle School Librarian and NEEF grant applicant, students with reading difficulties greatly benefit from large print books. With fewer words on the page and more visual contrast, reading becomes easier. Thanks to a NEEF grant of $5,527.45, the library has a vast collection of large print books that are popular among the students. Kenneth Richardson, a 7th grader, loves reading the large print books because they are easier to read than the small print books. This collection of books has helped students achieve grade-level reading skills, improved their reading comprehension, and inspired a love of reading.
